The P0430 code's mirror image is P0420, which applies to the converter on bank 1. As was mentioned, bank 1 and bank 2 simply refer to the different sides of the engine. It's also worth noting that engines with an inline or straight cylinder configuration only have one bank. One possible cause of the P030 code is a damaged oxygen sensor.

Although modern OBD II technology has simplified catalytic converter diagnostics, it's still important to understand the basics of catalytic converter operations when dealing with a P0420 or P0430 diagnostic trouble code (DTC). DTCs P0420/P0430 indicate that catalyst efficiency is below predetermined thresholds on cylinder banks 1 and 2, respectively.
